:: INCOSE Certification forms update
Dear Member,

In this issue read about several INCOSE conferences and workshops: the Systems Science Working Group is sponsoring a pre-IS Workshop on Systems Processes and Pathologies; webinars on Certification training and Writing Requirements continue through September; and, there is still time to register for IS 2013 in Philadelphia in June and APCOSEC in Yokohama in September.

NOTE: Be sure to click on the individual News header hyperlinks for further details on each news item.

INCOSE Certification Forms

The INCOSE Certification Program will be updating its application forms later this Summer, in response to user feedback and updated program guidelines. The last major round of updates was in December 2011. Organizations may re-distribute the forms to their members, including posting on intranet sites, but should periodically check the Certification Forms Page to ensure they are using the latest forms. The Program Office will continue to accept "old" forms for up to 12 months after a newer version is released. Forms prior to December 2011 are no longer accepted. If you would like to provide feedback on the current forms, please send it to mailto:Courtney.Wright@INCOSE.org?subject=INCOSE%20Certification%20Forms%20Comments

INCOSE Tutorial Webinars

John Clark started a new series of Systems Engineering Certification Tutorial and Fundamentals webinars, which will run through September. Read more at the direct links below

"Towards a Science of Systems: Exploring the Nature of Systems Processes & Pathologies"
(Sponsored by the Systems Science Working Group)
Sat, Jun 22, 2013 (prior to INCOSE Symposium in Philadelphia)

This workshop will identify and describe about fifty systems "processes" and many dozens of precise statements describing how these processes influence each other - as determined by an examination of processes occurring in Nature. Through presentations, posters, and exercises, we will explore many aspects of the science of systems and how to apply them.
Workshop attendance is limited to 30 persons. So, please sign up early to get a seat. Workshop registration can be done when you register for IS 2013.
