Meeting Topic:

Emerging technologies that can shape the future.

Presenter's background and abstract:

The chapter graciously invites its membership and guests to kick off the New Year with a fresh look at shaping the "future". Please join us at <http://amp150.com> for a technical presentation that will focus on the key role that Systems Engineering plays in the development and commercialization of advanced technologies.

Chris Pestak of Battelle will share some of his vast experience on how Systems Engineering principles may be applied to develop and commercialize technology.

Mr. Christopher Pestak is the Manager of NASA & Space Programs for the Battelle Memorial Institute. Chris manages Battelle's business portfolios with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), the Missile Defense Agency (MDA), and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA). He has 29 years experience in the engineering profession, spanning numerous positions as an engineer, engineering manager, project manager, program manager, and corporate executive. Mr. Pestak is an Associate Fellow of the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics (AIAA) and is a member of the AIAA Space Logistics Technical Committee. He served on the AIAA National Board of Directors from 1997 – 2003.

Note: The INCOSE members and non-members are all welcome to the local chapter meetings in the Cleveland Metropolitan area. The meetings are open to the public. For those in attendance, food & beverage purchases may be made. It is requested but not necessary that everyone attending use the following link to RSVP. <https://www.research.net/s/INCOSE-RSVP>
