Description: The INCOSE Cleveland NO Chapter would like to invite you to explore the use of the World Café (www.theworldcafe.com) technique to share the challenges we each face, and lessons we have learned when practicing Systems Engineering. The December 2014 chapter meeting will focus on Capturing and Managing Stakeholder Requirements with this topic question:

What challenges do I face as a Systems Engineer, capturing and managing stakeholder requirements? What can I share with other Systems Engineers to make this process work better?

World Café is used to engage people, especially those who don't know one another, in authentic conversation, generate input, share knowledge and conduct in-depth exploration of key strategic challenges or opportunities in a very short period of time.

This easy to use method keeps people moving, thinking creatively and building on one another's ideas as they rotate from table to table. World Café replicates the spontaneous and productive conversations that often happen when people share meals. Paper tablecloths and crayons inspire doodling and jotting down ideas. Provocative questions, relating to the topic at hand, stimulate meaningful discussions.

Participants will gather at small tables with each table focusing on a different questions that revolve around a strategic theme. The groups are small, 4-5 participants, with one of them serving as the host. After a set amount of time, typically 20-40 minutes all participants, except the host, move to another table. The host then introduces the insights and highlights from the previous conversation to the next group. World Café fosters collaborative dialogue, particularly in large groups, keeps people moving, thinking outside the box and building on one another's ideas as they rotate from table to table.

The meeting is free and open to the public. For those in attendance, food and beverage purchases may be made.
