About Our Speaker

Tony Williams is the Chief Engineer, Systems Engineering and Integration, at Jacobs Engineering developing flight systems for ISS, Orion, Deep Space Gateway, and Artemis programs. He also served as Jacobs Engineering lead for the Orion Ascent Abort-2 test and the Jacobs Project Manager for the ISS Simplified Aid for EVA Rescue (SAFER), a complex safety-critical jetpack that provides final self-rescue opportunity for a stranded astronaut who has drifted from the ISS. Prior assignments include serving as a Lecturer at the University of Houston where he taught a Master's level Systems Engineering series, and as a Senior Associate at Booz Allen Hamilton where his roles ranged from launch mission assurance studies to development of exploitation tools for multi- and hyper-spectral imagery to modeling of satellite constellation replacement needs. He is a retired Colonel in the Air Force Reserve including active duty tour as Chief, Space Command and Control Division and Commander, Space Operations Squadron at Air Force Space Command in 2005.

Tony is an INCOSE Expert Systems Engineering Professional. In April, 2017, Tony was elected to the INCOSE Board as the Director of the Americas Sector where he currently works with the 43 Chapters in North and South America to help facilitate their success.
