

Reaching Out to Relevant Professional Groups and Societies

Donna Rhodes, EWLSE Lead
MIT

Reaching Out to Relevant Professional Groups and Societies -- Strategic Objectives

- To establish organization-level relationships with other relevant societies and groups that can or would benefit from leadership in systems engineering
- To establish linkages to relevant professional women and diversity focused groups that are either independent societies or within relevant professional societies and groups
- To foster participation in or have influence on important panels, studies, and events owned and driven by other institutions that are important in supporting the EWLSE mission

Reaching Out to Relevant Professional Groups and Societies -- Strategic Initiatives

- Create a prioritized plan for outreach to establish relationships with relevant societies and groups
- Coordinate the activities of INCOSE EWLSE member volunteers who are also members of other relevant societies and groups to serve as liaisons between the two groups
- Establish agreements (informal and formal) to collaborate on mutually beneficial efforts between EWLSE and relevant societies and groups
- Provide EWLSE presence at key events of relevant societies and groups by providing keynote speakers and panel members, submitting and presenting papers on related research, supporting or managing a booth, or providing flyers and other resources
- Participate in selected collaborative national/international initiatives, influencing bodies, study panels including policy studies, and other endeavors outside of INCOSE, related to EWLSE goals
- Share, adopt and adapt successful strategies and practices learned from collaborating between EWLSE and relevant societies and groups