INCOSE SEQM Working Group Members*

Hello SEQM Working Group members and friends,

Missed the last cohort for the values-based quality management course, offered by the Quality Management Institute? Here's your chance—cohort 4 starts September 5, 2023. A full scholarship for this training is still available to members of the Systems Engineering Quality Management (SEQM) Working Group (you must also be an INCOSE member). To join the SEQM working group, go to <http://profile.incose.org>, login, access your Profile Home, and then Join a Working Group. Scroll down and check the box for Systems Engineering Quality Management.

About the Course

The Quality Management Institute (QMI) curriculum is a comprehensive online and face-to-face professional education program designed to validate and advance our organizational values, process knowledge, and collaboration skills needed to uphold our brand promise guarantee to our customers, stakeholders and ourselves. The program is designed to integrate human competencies with engineering and business processes in an intelligent system of quality management. The course is aligned with the latest updates to the INCOSE Handbook in the area of Quality Management.

Complete information about the course, along with the schedule is posted at <http://www.incose.org/seqm>.

To register, just send an email to barclay.brown@incose.net and include your name and INCOSE member number (which you can find in your profile described above).

The course is open to all INCOSE members of the SEQM Working Group, including brand-new ones, so feel free to forward this announcement to your chapters, groups and teams that may have interest in Quality Management training.
