

Organization IP Terms

Conference Proceedings Intellectual Property Terms

USE THIS TYPE WHEN	An employer, company, university, nonprofit, or other organization owns or controls the rights needed to publish the entire paper and has authorized publication under these terms.
DO NOT USE THIS TYPE WHEN	The authors personally own all rights; a government-specific release is required; the organization has not approved publication; or the paper combines rights that cannot accurately be covered by this single type.

How this document is used. This form is completed once per paper and signed by the corresponding author on behalf of all Authors listed on the Paper. The corresponding author should confirm that the Organization IP type applies to the entire Paper, review these terms, complete the signature page, and sign the form. The signed form records the Paper, the corresponding author, the Rights-Holding Organization(s), the signature date, and the version of these terms accepted.

1. Paper, authors, and rights-holding organization covered

These terms apply to the accepted conference paper and any accompanying files submitted for inclusion in the official INCOSE conference proceedings (collectively, the "Paper"). "Authors" means every person listed as an author of the Paper at the time this form is signed. "Rights-Holding Organization" means the employer, company, university, nonprofit, or other organization that owns or controls the copyright or related publication rights in the Paper.

The Organization IP type applies only when the rights necessary to publish the entire Paper are owned or controlled by one or more organizations and all required organizational approvals have been obtained. The legal name of each Rights-Holding Organization should be recorded in the signature page of this form.

2. Ownership and license to INCOSE

The Rights-Holding Organization retains ownership of the intellectual property rights, including copyright and related rights, that it holds in the Paper.

Through the corresponding author's recorded confirmation of the organization's authorization, each applicable Rights-Holding Organization grants the International Council on Systems Engineering ("INCOSE") a non-exclusive, fully paid-up, royalty-free, perpetual, worldwide license to use, publish, reproduce, print, display, distribute, transmit, archive, preserve, and otherwise make the Paper available in any media or format. This license includes the right to make technical, accessibility, production, formatting, and metadata changes that do not materially alter the scholarly content of the Paper and to authorize INCOSE's publishers, hosting providers, indexing services, preservation services, and affiliated societies to exercise these rights for publication and dissemination of the proceedings.

3. Proceedings, Version of Record, and metadata

INCOSE may publish the Paper as part of official INCOSE conference proceedings, assign an International Standard Serial Number (ISSN) or other publication identifier to the proceedings, and assign a Digital Object Identifier (DOI) or other persistent identifier to the Paper.

INCOSE may register, deposit, distribute, correct, and update bibliographic metadata for the Paper with Crossref and other scholarly indexing, discovery, preservation, and library services. The version published by or on behalf of INCOSE will constitute the official Version of Record.

4. Representations and required approvals

The corresponding author confirms that the Authors and each Rights-Holding Organization have authorized submission and publication of the Paper under these terms.

The Authors and applicable Rights-Holding Organization confirm that the Paper is original; has not previously been published as the same Version of Record; does not infringe the copyright, trademark, privacy, publicity, confidentiality, or other rights of any person or entity; and contains no unlawful or unauthorized material. All permissions for third-party content and all employer, customer, sponsor, export-control, security, and other release approvals must be obtained before submission.

5. Credit and moral rights

INCOSE and its affiliated societies will identify the Authors and, where appropriate, the Rights-Holding Organization when the Paper is published or reused, consistent with customary scholarly publishing practices.

To the extent permitted by applicable law, the Authors and Rights-Holding Organization waive or agree not to assert moral rights or similar rights that would interfere with the uses authorized by these terms.

6. Claims, release, and responsibility

The Authors and Rights-Holding Organization remain responsible for the accuracy and legality of the Paper and for any breach of the confirmations made through this form. To the extent permitted by applicable law, the party responsible for the breach will indemnify and hold INCOSE harmless from claims, damages, costs, and reasonable fees arising from that breach. INCOSE may control the defense of a covered claim through counsel of its choosing, and the Authors and Rights-Holding Organization will reasonably cooperate in that defense.

7. Corresponding author confirmation

By signing this form, the corresponding author confirms that they are authorized to act on behalf of every listed Author; that all Authors have reviewed and agreed to these terms; that each applicable Rights-Holding Organization has authorized the submission and license; that the Organization IP type accurately applies to the entire Paper; and that all approvals and permissions required for publication have been obtained.

Required copyright notice on the first page of the paper

Copyright © [year] by [legal name of rights-holding organization]. Permission granted to INCOSE to publish and use.

When more than one organization holds rights, list each organization as approved by those organizations and INCOSE Publications.

8. Governing law and questions

These terms are governed by and construed in accordance with the substantive laws of the State of Indiana, without reference to conflict-of-law principles. Questions should be directed to permissions@incose.net before final submission.

INCOSE Publications is no longer able to accommodate exceptions or modifications for Conference Proceedings. All rights must fall under one of the three types provided.
